

Participatory Environmental Education in Okayama, Japan

Akane Tanaka

Graduate School of Environmental and Life Science, Okayama University

Self Introduction

Akane Tanaka

Interest : Environmental Problems

Major : Organic Chemistry

Today's Topics

☆ Environmental Education

➤ co2sos

➤ asueco

➤ Okayama Association for the Future of Energy

co2sos

“realizing a sustainable society where people around the world work together to solve the problem of global warming”

CO₂ Measurement & Data Disclosure

Expanding observation networks with the help of contributors

Disclosing the data at the Science Museum and on the co2sos homepage

Having people team up to refine the methodologies of CO₂ measurement

Putting it into practice for environmental education (eco-event/seminars)

Eco-event

Virtual Science Museum

Graph analysis

Exploring the global warming mechanisms

Dagik Earth

asueco

“To be a catalyst for seeing, feeling, noticing, and taking action.”

Environmental Education at School

Okayama Association for the Future of Energy

“to conserve the global environment, prevent global warming, and realize a sustainable society by promoting natural energy and energy conservation.”

Environmental Education at School
